WHAT'S IN A NAME?

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

In the days of 'wild cat' money in the West, the Ames shovels were used as currency. They were as stable as gold; their price did not vary a cent in twenty years. The very name of Oliver Ames & Son, was a synonym for honesty. It was current all over the world.

On the same principle Benson's Porous Plaster is the universal standard external remedy. To say it is a "good" plaster does not describe it; it is the best possible plaster. For every disease in which an external remedy is available, Benson's Plaster is used almost as a matter of course.

Benson's Plaster quickly relieves and cures where other modes of treatment are either exasperatingly slow or have no good effect whatever. Coughs, colds, lumbago, kidney trouble, rheumatism, lame back, etc., are at once benefited and soon cured.

Chapismus, Strengthening and Belladonna plasters have none of the curative virtues of Benson's. More than 5,000 physicians and druggists have commended Benson's Plaster as a remedy in which the public may have implicit confidence; while, in a comparative test with other plasters, Benson's has received fifty-five highest awards.

Beware of substitutes and cheap imitations. For sale by all druggists or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each. Seabury & Johnson, Mfg. Chemists, N. Y.

"JESTIFIED

KILLIN'"

How Old Jones Settled

With Curly Bill.

The sun was low toward the western peaks when Old Jones and his nephew halted their teams for the night. Old Jones and his relative were freighters, and the crack of their long, shot filled mule whips and the creak of their heavy wagons had been heard in half of the camps of Colorado.

The four wagons tonight were swung into the segment of a circle, and the mules were hobbled and cast loose from the straps in which through the day they pulled. At this relief these grateful slaves stood about and attested their joy in the loud cries peculiar to their kind, but which are so unfortunate in their lack of harmony. To stop this racket the nephew went about giving them their vesper feed. This he placed in morrels, or nosebags, which he hung to their hungry heads. Old Jones built a fire and began the compilation of an intricate but savory dish known to those happy ones who have the recipe as "freighters' stew."

Supper over, the two freighters sat about in the lurking shadows made by the fire's blink and glimmer, smoking their pipes. All at once there was a commotion in the band of mules. Those patient folk who had scrambled and pulled all day over a rough mountain trail with wagons loaded on the principle of 1,200 pounds to a mule, and who now in the propitiously of mule life should be at peace and rest with the world, were charging about and snorting in a very alarming way.

"Injuns!" said Old Jones, shoving back into the gloom. "Injuns, for a thousand dollars! There ain't no animal on earth, bar Injuns, ever makes mules take on that away."

The nephew thought so too. Old Jones and the nephew did not fear an attack. There were no Indians about that were not described as friendly.

But what they did fear was that the mules might be stampeded. Stamping stock is a great aboriginal industry. The Indian will stampede your cattle or mules and then claim a dollar a head for finding them for you. Thus do these wise sons of nature fill their coffers and exact a revenue from those who cross their lands.

Joseph's nephew took a Winchester from the wagon and began to work his cautious, silent way toward the mules. Those last were still snorting and shying as if prey to wild alarm. The nephew disappeared in the darkness. Old Jones placed his hand over his pipe bowl so its fiery eye could not be seen and peered after him into the gloom.

"Bang! Bang! Bang!" It was the Winchester speaking. It told the Indian policy of the border, and a very sufficient good policy it is too. Old Jones at the sound heaved a sigh, but never moved. After a little the nephew came in to the fire. He seemed alert, hopeful and unrepentant as to the Winchester Indian policy.

"Did you stretch one?" said Old Jones.

"I think most likely I did," said the nephew in a sanguine way. "We can tell in the mornin', shore."

Old Jones and his nephew had visitors in the morning. The whole Ute tribe and their agent came down to the freighters' camp. The members of the Jones family at once seized their Winchester and alaciously prepared for war. The Utes ran about, jumping and yelling and demanding vengeance. Old Jones and his nephew stood silent and grim behind their wagon and showed their iron teeth. The agent insisted on peace. Would the Jones who had killed the Ute the night before give himself up? He would be guaranteed from harm, but the Utes insisted on his arrest.

They (the Indians) would attack the wagons if the criminals did not surrender. So spoke the agent, a nervous little incompetent, as many an Indian agent is.

"Give up nothing," said Old Jones derisively. "You tell them Utes if they want anything round here to wait in and get it."

The Utes howled and danced still harder and higher at this, and the agent talked more earnestly than ever. He threatened the Joneses with the power of the government. This was too much. They would fight the whole Ute tribe, but they were afraid of Uncle Sam. After a brief parley the nephew stepped out and gave himself up to the agent. He would have displayed more sense if he had remained behind his wagon and died in the smoke of his Winchester.

The agent, the nephew and the Utes did not go a mile toward the agency before the Indians took the nephew and, tying him to a pine tree, spent several blissful hours in torturing him to death. The agent was powerless to interfere.

Jones the elder found the truth the evening of the same day. He turned a little pale under the thirty years of tan which browned his face, but said nothing. As well as he could he hitched up his teams and went ahead. His course was slow. Where the going was easy the nephew's team, eight mules, could follow the others and get along all right. Where it was rough Old Jones halted them and, after driving his own team over, came back for them.

Two months later the old man unloaded his freight at a camp in the Gunnison country. He told the story of his nephew's death and charged it to the agent. The populace agreed with him to a man. Old Jones insisted the agent should likewise suffer death. Public sentiment rushed to the same conclusion. Every man in the Tinclip district who heard of the matter at once advised Jones to go back and kill the miserable agent or, if that scheme did not suit, to hire some one who would. Never was public sentiment so uniform in a matter before. It was beautiful.

"Fire some one to go back. Kill the agent!" This struck Old Jones, who had strong commercial instincts, as a good thing. He inquired for some one who would undertake the enterprise. He did not think it should cost much. "It is dead easy to do," he said. "Jest ride camly to the agency and beef him and then ride away. That oughtn't to cost no fortune." And he was willing to give a "hoss and outfit" and $500.

"I'll go you," said a bad looking gentleman called Curly Bill.

Curly Bill was certainly a very bad man, as any one might see by examining his six shooter. He had fled away the sights as superfluous to one so sure and keen and had taken out the trigger, trusting to explode his interesting weapon by the simple process of letting the hammer fall from his thumb. These changes in the ground plan of a Colt's 44 always bespeak a bad man the wide west over, and such was Curly Bill, the personage who wanted to hire out to kill the agent.

Preliminaries were arranged, and the horse and outfit were turned over, in company with $200 of the $500, and Curly Bill rode away on his long pull for the Ute agency.

Six weeks and their happenings were added to history, and so far nothing floated back from Curly Bill. One afternoon he rode again into the camp in the Gunnison country. The public crowded about to learn of his success. Curly Bill got out of the saddle and stepped into a saloon. The public followed and at his request took a drink with him. At last Old Jones put the question:

"Did you get him, Curly?"

"No," said Curly Bill.

"Why not?"

"Well," said Curly Bill, with an amiable drawl, "I'll tell you what's the matter. You see, the cuss offered me $1,000 to come back and down you."

There was a profound silence. Old Jones seemed thoughtful and cast down, and the public waited. At last Old Jones put another pertinent inquiry:

"Well, whatever do you allow you'll do about it?"

"Whatever'll you do about it?" said Curly Bill. "Will you raise him?"

"S'pose I don't raise him?" said Old Jones. "S'pose I don't even call him?" And an ugly glare began to shine in his watery gray eyes, albeit his voice was low and his face calm.

"Well," said Curly Bill, with vast nonchalance, "in that event I reckon I'll have to go him."

The public took a deep breath at this announcement, and Old Jones seemed plunged in thought again. At last he found his voice.

"I'll think this yere matter over, Bill, and I reckon on fixin' up somethin' so you won't complain none of me. You be yere and I'll come back in an hour."

Then Old Jones proceeded straight to his wagons, got his Winchester and, coming in the back door of the saloon wherein Curly Bill was refreshing himself after the campaign, blew that celebrated person's head off without a word.

Old Jones then gave himself up to the citizens' committee and demanded a trial. It was had at once. Every man in the camp knew of the killing and its entire history. They all approved it too. It was esteemed, however, not a proper thing to allow the plot to kill the agent to go abroad to the world. The account might in unskillful hands become garbled and hurt the camp's reputation. So when Old Jones was acquitted, which denouement was rapid in its coming, the verdict read thus:

"Jestified killin' on account of Curly Bill insullin' of Old Jones' wife."

This is a true tale of the west.

FRUITFUL TURKEY.

The Crops Are Usually Magnificent, and the Waste is Immense.

No government, however corrupt, selfish, venal, extravagant and exacting, can bring a population to starvation in a land like Turkey. Grapevines run all over the houses. The Turkish vineyards are incomparable. The poor Turk takes little trouble about his agricultural implements. His plow is much like that which Noah must have used, for it is simply a long piece of wood, with a yoke of oxen at one end of it and a single handle at the other. With this the rayah just scratches the soil. The crops are usually magnificent, but the waste is immense. Horses, mules and donkeys go loaded to market, but the road is strewn with grain leaking from old sacks, and thousands of turkeys which may be bought at 12 cents apiece feed on the dropping corn.

Thousands of sheep flourish on the vast pasture lands of the wide valleys. Yet the people do not eat voraciously of animal food. They only need a little lamb or mutton to shred into fragments, that they may stew it with rice into the delicious dish called "pilaff." The Turks relish their glorious watermelons. They can contentedly live as approximate vegetarians. No nation is at so little expense for dietetic commodities. The cows do not give very much milk, but that milk is almost as rich as cream. Cotton grows splendidly in many parts of the empire, and so does tobacco. Olives, apples, pears, all sorts of plums, peaches, apricots, pomegranates, tomatoes, melons, squashes, quinces, oranges and lemons abound in the poorest gardens. The provinces which owe allegiance to the sultan would feed ten times the population now inhabiting them.

At the bottom of the wonderful physical vitality of the Turkish race is the universal abstinence of the common people. They are the most abstemious race on the earth and the healthiest. The soldiers, peasants, merchants and members of the learned professions never touch alcohol, although the upper classes of Constantinople drink considerably.

The Authoress and the Artist.

A good story is told of Morelli, Italy's famous painter, which will bear repetition. An authoress of note was in Naples and very much desired to know him, but could find no one to act as intermediary. So at last she took her courage in her hands and resolved to introduce herself, but not without qualms. As she approached she found the studio door open—one more cause for embarrassment—and, pushing a curtain to one side, stood before the artist at work, who, looking at her absently, said:

"These lines seem to be all right. What do you say?"

And to her murmured response he went on:

"But the eyes of the nuns do not suit me; pray sit down a moment; yours are just the thing."

With inward delight the lady sat down and acted as model for an hour and a half, during which writer and artist talked as though they had been friends all their lives.

At a certain point Morelli stopped abruptly, took off his glasses, peered at his handsome model and said, "But, excuse me, who are you?"

Dr. Taft Bros. Medicine Co.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmale, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic Asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmale. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours respectfully,

O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since. I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Doctor Pierce's medicines."

H. H. GRANICE - EDITOR

Most of the insects common to house plants dislike tobacco as much as does the cleanly housewife. The best way to use it as an insecticide upon window plants is to secure a good handful of tobacco stems, place them in an old basin, pour boiling water upon them, and let them stand for several hours. Then drain off the liquid into a basin or tub deep enough for immersing the tops of your plants in, and dilute it with warm water until it shows only a faint tint of brown. Then take up the plants one at a time, and hold them, tops down, in the water, washing them clean.—Dec. Ladies' Home Journal.

AN INJUSTICE.

The Attack Upon Mrs. Ben Pohley Denounced by the Ukiah Papers.

Some weeks ago a sensational dispatch from Ukiah appeared in one of the city papers which reflected upon the reputation of Mrs. Pohley, wife of engineer Ben Pohley of the California Northwestern railway. As the parties are well-known in this valley and out of a spirit of justice we republish the following from the Dispatch-Democrat of Ukiah, which puts a different aspect on the case:

"The city papers are continually misrepresenting events that occur in this county. Through the misrepresentations of 'space writers' Round Valley was made out to be the worst place on earth. Now Ukiah is being treated to a season of sensational misrepresentations, which have ruined the reputations of men and women alike and reflected upon the whole community. The 'space writer' began a month ago by writing up the Pohley case in a highly sensational and exaggerated manner that did Mrs. Pohley a great injustice. Other people have since been written up by these space writers and the matter has gone so far that the people here are getting very much disgusted with those papers that are continually tearing down instead of building up. Those who have been unjustly attacked have the sympathy of the entire community."

Bela F. Howard Dead.

Bela F. Howard, an old resident of the upper part of the valley, died at his home near Glen Ellen on Friday of last week. The deceased was a native of Massachusetts and aged 81 years. He was the stepfather of Miss Emily Kurtz, the well-known school teacher. The remains were taken to Santa Rosa and interred in Stanley's cemetery.

Repairing Neatly Done

Never thought of such a sign for a medicine did you? Well, it's a good sign for Scott's Emulsion. The body has to be repaired like other things and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine that does it.

These poor bodies wear out from worry, from over-work, from disease. They get thin and weak. Some of the new ones are not well made—and all of the old ones are racked from long usage.

Scott's Emulsion fixes all kinds. It does the work both inside and out. It makes soft bones hard, thin blood red, weak lungs strong, hollow places full. Only the best materials are used in the patching and the patches don't show through the new glow of health.

No one has to wait his turn. You can do it yourself—you and the bottle.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York. 50c. and $1. all druggists.

THE OBSERVER.

A MISSPENT LIFE.

George M. Pullman, the twenty-six-year-old son of the millionaire family of that name, is dead. He died of pneumonia at his palatial home in San Mateo, after a wildly dissipated career of several years. Pneumonia is given as the immediate cause of his death, but a much abused system run down by fast living was the real cause of his taking off.

George Pullman wasted his life. Born with a silver spoon in his mouth he never knew what it was to concentrate his mind on anything. He had nothing to occupy his time further than to spend the fortune which had fallen to him. His only goal in life was the gratification of base desires and ere long he joined the Bacchanalian train and was reveling in the fleeting pleasures which have at last wound up at the grave.

He lived fast and furious for he little realized that he was only human, and it seems never once to have occurred to him that there was a to-morrow. His physical self began to fail and mind had lost the innate power to govern. George Pullman was fast approaching the brink.

His father, realizing the uselessness of a life so idly spent, left him no money in his will but his mother still supplied him with an allowance of $1,000 a month. We are apt to blame the mother for this and yet it would have made little difference to George Pullman at this time whether he was pauper or millionaire. If money had been kept from him then he would have been in the gutter to-day, for at this stage he had lost all self-control. With money he could at least maintain himself in style and keep about him a host of parasites who would look after him just because of his money. He could live more decently because of his wealth and die more quickly. Far better is he dead than glutting his lost soul in some low quarter of the city or being mercilessly kicked about like many poor unfortunates whose fate is poverty but whose habits are no different than were those of the wealthy spendthrift.

In the case of George Pullman without a doubt money was a curse—poverty compared to it a blessing.

There is no doubt whatever that if this young man had been born of parents in moderate circumstances he would have been living to-day a comparatively successful life. He would have had something to strive for in the striving for which his body would have been kept sound and his mind active and concentrated. Health and ambition would have given us a useful citizen, whereas wealth never allowed the innate ability of George Pullman to come to its maturity.

What kind of a philosopher he was I cannot imagine. Not an optimist, for he strives for content of mind. Not the hedonist, for he strives for true happiness. Not the epicurean, for he believes in rational pleasure. Not the pessimist altogether and yet, as an after thought, I say perhaps a pessimist. The philosophy of indifferentism was his. Such believe that there is no god but a blind law of necessity, which drives us on and because of this belief in fatalism and materialism they seek forever the pleasures of the moment.

Who would follow the short beaten path of unfortunates George Pullman? Remember this very day you are living your life. Live it well.

"You know how little while we have to stay,
And once departed may return no more."

The Thanksgiving day that we observe in 1901 calls to mind the change that has been wrought in the character of this particular holiday since the time of our Puritan ancestors. In the seventeenth century Thanksgiving day was primarily a day of thanksgiving—a religious holiday when all the settlers in the New World gathered together for worship and offertory. The greatest part of the day was spent in the primitive little meeting house and then with deepest reverence the thankful worshipper and his family trudged home to partake of the inevitable turkey, pumpkin pie and plum pudding. The dinner of course was no small feature of the holiday, but the religious service took precedence over all else.

As time went on and Indian warfare, civil duties and commercial activities engaged the attention of the settlers their religious ardor cooled and savored less of fanaticism. Then it was that the hours at church were shortened, and more attention was paid to the holiday side of Thanksgiving. We began to see a social aspect—merry-making colors seriousness, and the dinner is a pronounced feature.

With the coming of new settlers and the infusing of new blood Thanksgiving day becomes more than ever a day of rest—a holiday rather than a holy day. We of the twentieth century look upon it in this light. We are inclined to think more of our turkey and cranberry sauce than of the hours set aside for praise and thanksgiving. If we work, we treat Thanksgiving as a day of rest and pleasure. Except to the orthodox the day has lost much of its original significance.

Carrie Nation's husband has been granted a divorce, and Carrie is again on the market. How many proposals do you think she'll have before the end of the year?

A man in Louisville, Ky., seeing his picture in the paper blew out his brains. He couldn't pass his face any longer. He was a defaulter.

IN DEADLY PERIL.

The Narrow Path of Safety.

The Alpine tourist who finds himself suddenly clinging to a cliff and fingers to a shelf of slippery rock overhanging a dizzy precipice, understands in a very literal sense the full meaning of the words, "There is but a step between me and death." His peril is so tragic in all its circumstances, so wild in its mountain setting, that the heart almost stands still at the thought of it.

But as a matter of fact every man walks the world with his life in his hands, and the path of safety is narrow for his feet.

An example of the constant peril in which we live is found in the alarming number of deaths from consumption. The country is thoroughly aroused to the need of doing something to stop the ravages of the deadly germ of this disease. Several states have made liberal appropriations for sanitariums in favorable climates. The medical skill of the world is enlisted to fight consumption. Yet in spite of all that is done, the disease seems to gain ground instead of losing it.

THE FORCE OF HABIT is strong with us. We are so accustomed to the world wide prevalence of consumption that we accept it practically as a necessary evil. If some strange disease were to break out, and destroy human life to the same extent as does consumption, such a disease would be looked upon as an appalling plague. Quarantine would be established against it, and days of fasting and prayer appointed by the churches for the mitigation of the disease. But we accept consumption as inevitable because of its familiarity.

How true this is may be judged from a recent report of Sanitary Officer Gorgas, of Havana, Cuba. It has been cable to the United States that yellow fever was epidemic in Havana. Dr. Gorgas answered that there is no epidemic. He says: "In the past month there were 72 deaths from consumption and 52 from yellow fever. Yellow fever therefore should not be considered epidemic more than consumption."

What light that throws on our acceptance of consumption! A scarce cry is raised that yellow fever is epidemic because of 52 deaths in one month. Not a word was said as to consumption which in the same month claimed 72 victims, or over 35% more than died of yellow fever. The great question is: Why is consumption so widespread? The answer is found in the general neglect of diseases which if neglected or unsuitably treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

THE GERM OF CONSUMPTION IS ENTIRELY HARMLESS

when the lungs are healthy. In a condition of health these germs are received with impunity. It is only when the lungs are "weak" that the germ is dangerous. For this reason the real danger to be guarded against is the incipient weakness of the lungs, the severe cold, the deep cough, and other affections of the organs of respiration. These diseases can be cured perfectly and permanently by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"I was troubled with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs and left me with a miserable cough," writes Mr. Joseph D. Burns, of 318 Huestis St., Ithaca, N. Y. "I used two bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' after which my cough disappeared entirely. I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

But "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a mere cough medicine. The cures of deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, etc., are but slight tests of the merit of this medicine. In many cases where there were hemorrhages, night-sweats, emaciation, and every symptom of disease which usually terminates fatally in consumption, "Golden Medical Discovery" has effected a lasting cure.

"I take great pleasure in sending you this testimonial," writes Mr. Will H. Whitmore, of Arkton, Rockingham Co., Va., "and to tender you my heartfelt thanks for the restoration to health of my son, A. P. Whitmore, through the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

"Our son contracted a deep cold, and had a terrible cough. We called a doctor and he pronounced it irritation of the bronchial tubes, with asthmatic trouble, and he informed me that my son was liable to die at any time. He told me that if we could keep the bronchial tubes open, he might cure him; but after treating him several weeks and my son growing worse all the time, I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I had seen several miraculous cures brought about by the use of these medicines, and, of course, I had wonderful faith in them. I am so happy to tell you that I have not been disappointed, and that my boy is well. He used three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' at home and one vial of the 'Pellets,' and was then well enough to go to West Virginia, taking a supply with him. I am just in receipt of a letter from him from which I quote: 'I am well and hardy and getting very fleshy.'"

"The neighbors all knew the condition of my boy and they all said he had consumption and would not live a month, and the doctor told some persons after I commenced the use of your medicine that my boy had quick consumption and would have to die."

Persons suffering from disease in chronic form are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held in strict privacy and sacred confidence. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." The main motive of substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines.

SENT FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages and over 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Y. M. I. ball at Union Hall Thanksgiving eve was largely attended and a success both socially and financially. The music, furnished by Park's orchestra of Santa Rosa, was praised on all sides by the dancers, while the supper, furnished by mine host Wilde of the Union, came in for its meed of praise from the epicures. The members of the Young Men's Institute deserve credit for their efforts in making the ball the most successful social gathering of the season.

A. J. Snell wanted to attend a party, but was afraid to do so on account of pains in his stomach, which he feared would grow worse. COL. DAN. BURNS.

He May Locate a Blooded Stock Farm Near Here.

Everybody knows or has read about Col. Dan Burns, politician, millionaire mine owner and promoter of all kinds of enterprises. Well, Dan'l was in town Sunday. His presence here on that day created quite a furore on our streets when it became known that it was the "Kurnel, shuah," and the question was asked on all sides, "Wonder what he is doing here?"

It remains for the INDEX-TRIBUNE to answer the question. Col. Burns is looking up a location for a blooded stock farm near Sonoma and has an eye on two places—the Kate Johnson Buena Vista estate and the Col. Rogers ranch, now the property of the Wickersham heirs.

He inspected the Buena Vista ranch from its southern boundary line clear over into the Lovall valley and expressed himself as well pleased with the property, which is highly improved and magnificent in proportions.

A visit will be made, to the Wickersham ranch shortly and its broad acres will also be inspected.

It is said that Col. Burns has decided to become the owner of one of these two places, but has not yet made up his mind to which he will give the preference.

Both propositions are a snap to a man of means. These ranches are admirably adapted for stock-raising purposes, embracing as they do hundreds of acres of fine grazing lands, living streams of cool sparkling water and shade trees in profusion.

Should Col. Burns invest in either of these properties it will be a good thing for this valley as he is wide-awake, progressive and possesses all kinds of money.

FREE RURAL DELIVERY.

Inspector Haas Visits this Valley.

J. W. Haas, an inspector of free delivery routes, was in Sonoma the latter part of last week and made a tour of inspection over the local route. He pronounced quite a number of the mail boxes now in use as being entirely unfit for the purpose. He placed a notice in all of such boxes that they must be replaced within one month by one of the fourteen different kinds of mail boxes that have been approved by the postal department, and if they have not been removed in that time no mail will be allowed to be deposited therein by the carrier. The free rural delivery service is to be greatly improved in this valley and will be placed under the Civil Service rules January 1st next, and will be made equal, if possible, to the service now enjoyed by the large cities. Congress has been recommended to set aside $6,000,000 for free rural delivery throughout the country for 1902.

Broke an Arm.

Helen Morris, the little nine-year-old daughter of J. B. Morris of Agua Caliente, fell from the limb of a tree in the public school yard in this place, Tuesday afternoon, and fractured her left arm between the elbow and wrist. The little sufferer was assisted to the residence of her brother-in-law, Dr. Rich, who set the broken bones, and at latest accounts his little patient, although confined to her bed, was getting along nicely. About a year ago Miss Helen had her right arm broken by a fall from a horse.

Mushroom Gathering.

The weather the past week, alternating as it has between sunshine and showers, has been favorable to the growth of mushrooms. Large quantities are being gathered by many of our people for their own tables. Only one case of poisoning from eating the succulent fungus has ever been reported in this valley and that was the case of two boys who last year gathered toadstools, cooked them in an old tin can and ate a large quantity of them. They were very sick boys but both recovered. The safest test against mushroom poisoning is to let the fungus alone unless you know what you are gathering. The silver test does not always work.

Nufer Won His Suit.

The civil suit instituted in Judge Caldwell's court, Napa, by T. A. Nufer of this place against John Muller, to recover the sum of $47 and costs of suit, was decided in favor of plaintiff last Tuesday. Hon. Theodore Bell represented Mr. Nufer's interests in the case. The suit was brought for services rendered.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER

Arrested by Constable Ohm and Makes a Desperate and Successful Break for Liberty.

Constable Chas. H. Ohm returned from a visit to his gold mine in Nevada county one day last week. Notwithstanding he has the gold fever pretty bad Charley still has a penchant for running down vags, tramps and offenders against the law. Last Monday evening while driving into town with John McNeil the officer observed two suspicious characters who were endeavoring to avoid him. He overhauled them and placed them under arrest. The suspects were forced into the rig and a start made for town. Suddenly one of the suspects jumped out of the wagon and made a dash for liberty. Constable Ohm called upon him to halt, but the fleeing man paid no heed to the command, whereupon the officer, turning the other prisoner over to McNeil, also jumped from the rig and started in pursuit. Seeing the man was gaining upon him Constable Ohm unlimbered his artillery and turned loose upon him, firing three shots over his head, bringing him to a halt. This only accelerated the speed of the escaping prisoner and put so much vim and energy into him that he outdistanced the officer and made good his escape. The man was evidently a hard case and an escaped criminal as he risked his life to avoid arrest and identification. His pal was brought into town and placed in the lock-up but was turned loose as there was no evidence against him, although he, too, was evidently an old offender.

A SANGUINARY SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Officer H. Hankel of Santa Rosa Shot by Fred Allen.

Returns the Fire and Mortally Wounds His Assailant Who Dies in the County Hospital.

Fred. Allen, a habitue of the tenderloin district of Santa Rosa, died at the County Hospital Wednesday from a gunshot wound inflicted by Officer Hankel of that city last Monday night.

A Coroner's Jury summoned to inquire into the death of Allen exonerated the officer, as the testimony showed that he had acted clearly in self-defense.

The pistol duel between the officer and Allen was a most sanguinary one. It occurred in the tenderloin district of Santa Rosa, whither Officer Hankel had been summoned by telephone to arrest Allen, who with loaded pistol and a pocket full of cartridges was terrorizing the denizens of that part of town. Arriving upon the scene the officer was recognized by the young desperado, who immediately drew a pistol and opened fire upon him. The very first shot struck the guardian of the peace in the leg, who pluckily stood his ground and returned the fire. In the fusillade that followed seven shots were exchanged. One shot from Allen's pistol grazed the helmet of the officer and another bullet went through his coat sleeve after he was shot through the leg. Finally a bullet from Henkel's pistol struck Allen in the stomach and placed him hors du combat, and he was subsequently arrested after retreating several hundred yards.

Officer Hankel was removed to his home and will be laid up for some time.

Allen was taken to the County Hospital and survived his wound two days as narrated above. He was known in Santa Rosa as a disolute young fellow and dangerous when under the influence of liquor.

The Storm.

Robert Hall, local U. S. Signal Service Observer, reports the precipitation for the late storm to have been 1.13 inches up to 7 o'clock Friday morning with indications of more rain. So far 4.30 inches of rain has fallen during November. The precipitation for the season has been 6.22 inches against 7.26 for a corresponding period last season.

LOSSES IN COOKING MEATS.

Conclusions Drawn by Government Experts From Experiments.

Dietary investigations made by government experts show that of the total food consumed by the average man in this country 20 per cent is flesh, if that term is taken to include not only meat, but also poultry, fish and shellfish.

Incidentally a question studied has had to do with the amount of nutritive material lost in the cooking of meat. That there is a loss, of course, is obvious enough, especially where the material is boiled and the water afterward thrown away, but nothing has been known on the subject until recently with any degree of accuracy, and hence the value of the government investigation, which ought to have no little interest for the American housewife.

Here are some of the conclusions drawn by the experts from their experiments:

The chief loss in weight during the cooking of beef is due to the driving off of water. Lean beef will lose in this way as much as 38 per cent of its weight.

When beef is fried, there appears to be no great loss of nutritive material.

When beef is cooked in water, from 3 to 20 per cent of the total solids are found in the broth. If the broth is used for soup or otherwise, it is no loss obviously.

Beef that has been used for a preparation of beef tea or broth has lost little of its nutritive value, though much of the flavoring has been removed.

Fat meat contains less water proportionately and so shrinks less in cooking. Other things being equal, a small piece of meat cooked in water shrinks more relatively than a large piece. —Saturday Evening Post.

Sheridan's Sleeping Bag.

I was reading the other day that Wendell Phillips, the lecturer, when he traveled carried a sleeping bag, into which he crawled at night when at a strange hotel. It reminded me of the sleeping bag that DeB. Randolph Reim tells me General Sheridan carried while on the campaign against the Indians in mid-winter. It was made of fur, with the fur inside, and Sheridan used to strip and crawl into it.

The general had two big dogs that followed him about, and in the morning early when the reveille was sounded the dogs would go nosing about until they got into Sheridan's tent, when they would rush upon their sleeping master and run their cold noses into the sleeping bag. It had the effect of an electrical bath on "Little Phil," and the language he used was exceedingly free. The mercury in his tent would go up about 40 degrees when he cut loose, and the dogs would rush growling down the camp street, while Reim would lie there and laugh. —Harrisburg Telegraph.

Animals That Weep.

Do animals weep? Explorers say they do. Lady Burton says that she has seen horses in the Syrian desert cry from thirst, a mule cry from pain of an injured foot and a camel shed tears in streams. Gordon Cumming declares that he has observed tears in the eyes of a dying elephant, and Dr. Livingstone used to have a pet ape which cried when the explorer would not take it in his arms. Wounded apes have died crying, and apes have wept over their young ones slain by hunters. Sea lions are said to cry for the loss of their young, and a giraffe which had been injured by the rifle of a hunter began to cry. Another explorer tells of a chimpanzee which had been trained to carry water jugs. It let one fall and break and in its sorrow set a-crying. There seems to be little doubt that animals do sometimes cry from pain, sorrow or annoyance; but, as a rule, we cannot catch the watchdog in tears or the family cat having a "good cry."

He Won the Bet.

At an evening party given by King Edward VII. when he was Prince of Wales was a young lord. It was his first invitation, and his royal highness showed him particular attention, which so impressed the young nobleman that he came to regard himself as a particular favorite of the prince. He even went so far as to declare that he would get the prince to wait upon him in person. He was laughed at for his pains. Then a bet was proposed and accepted. After dinner, when all the gentlemen had retired to the hilliard room, the "favorite" suddenly called out:

"Look here, Wales! Be good enough to ring for a glass of punch!"

Everybody was thunderstruck, but the prince, with a genial smile, walked up to the bellrope and rang. When the footman came in, he quietly said:

"Get this gentleman his carriage."

A Good Cough Medicine.

[From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia.]

I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. Wockner. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited, as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by F. Duhring.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. Druggists sell the 50c. size; Trial size by mail, 10 cents. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment.

Announcement.
To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation.

ARE YOU DEAF? ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable. HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY. F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion. About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely. I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever. I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours, F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation. Examination and advice free. YOU CAN CURE YOURSELF AT HOME at a nominal cost. INTERNATIONAL AURAL CLINIC, 596 LA SALLE AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.
